Three Popular Darwin Tulips

I AM offering this year for the first time a limited number of varieties of Darwin Tulips. These bulbs were grown under the same ideal conditions that are found in this locality for the growing of Peonies, and I feel they will prove to be just as fine in their class as my Peonies. While they are not grown in my own gardens, I have had every opportunity to watch them, have checked their cultivation, have seen them in bloom and after they were dug, and I feel confident that they will give you just as fine flowers and just as good satisfaction as the imported bulbs, at a considerable saving in price.

Size of Bulbs

The No. 1 size bulbs are all full top size and will give large flowers and tall stems. The No. 2 size will all flower, but of course, will not be as large as the No. 1 size. However, they will all grow into No. 1 bulbs in a year. The No. 3 bulbs are smaller in size, and many of these will flower but, of course, will not produce nearly as large bloom as the other two sizes. Some of these bulbs will reach full maturity in a year, others will require two years' growth.
